Principal activities and nature of operations of the Company

The principal activities of the Company, which are unchanged from last year, are the production of agriculture greenhouse film and multifunctional film for other applications, wholesale trade and international trade.

Continuity of activity

These financial statements have been prepared based on the business continuity principle, which assumes that the Company will normally continue its activity in the foreseeable future without entering into a state of liquidation or significant reduction of the activity.

Interest rate risk

Interest rate risk is the risk that the value of financial instruments will fluctuate due to changes in market interest rates. Credit risk

Credit risk is the risk that a counterparty will not meet its obligations under a financial instrument or customer contract, leading to a financial loss. The Company is exposed to credit risk from its operating activities - primarily trade receivables and from its financing activities, including deposits with banks, foreign exchange transactions and other financial instruments.

Credit risk related to trade receivables: This is managed based on established policies, procedures and controls relating to customer credit risk management. Credit limits are established for all customers based on internal ratings. Credit quality of the customer and outstanding customer receivables are assessed and regularly monitored. The Company does not hold collateral as security.

Liquidity risk

Liquidity risk is the risk that arises when the maturity of assets and liabilities does not match. An unmatched position potentially enhances profitability but can also increase the risk of losses. The Company has procedures with the object of minimizing such losses such as maintaining sufficient cash and other highly liquid current assets and by having available an adequate amount of committed credit facilities.

Dividends

The dividend distribution policy of the Company is defined in the articles of association. The dates as well as the manner and method of dividend payments to the shareholders are resolved by the general board.

To assess the applicability of this presumption, management analyzes forecasts of future cash inflows. Based on these analyzes, the management believes that the Company will be able to continue its activity in the foreseeable future and therefore, the application of the principle of continuity of activity in the preparation of the financial statements is justified.

Events after the balance sheet

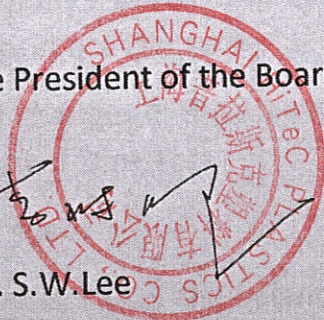

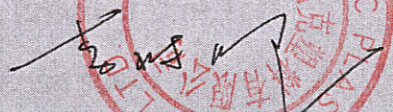

In December 2019, the new SARS -COV-2 virus appeared in China and the COVID-19 disease caused by the new coronavirus began to spread worldwide. On March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization declared a pandemic of coronary heart disease 2019 (COVID-19). Subsequently, countries - to reduce the spread of the virus - began to take measures, such as the prohibition of international business and tourism travel, the restriction of social and labor travel within countries, the closure of businesses, etc.

As far as the Company, its production has continued normally until today. The demand for its products has remained stable until today, despite the pandemic, because the sectors we are addressing, the agricultural economy and the plastics industry, have not been significantly affected. Overall, from the beginning of the year 2020 until the end of April, the sales volume of the Company has decreased by 2% compared to the same period of 2019. The demand for our products and the existing orders for the next two months are at normal levels for the season.

Therefore, according to the current circumstances, the effects of the pandemic are not expected to have an impact on the continuation of business activities and the financial results of the Company, unless a second wave of the disease later or a sudden and unexpected situation, change the current picture. The Management monitors with special attention the developments. Also, none of the noticeable effects is considered as a later corrective event of the financial statements of 31.12.2019.

The President of the Board

Mr. S.W. Lee
